It has a classic, now familiar, aerodynamic shape, and a solid feel that bespeaks dependability.

And, of course, it has all the conveniences expected of a Buick, including automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, plush cloth seats and a responsive 3.8-litre engine. Or you can order the available 5.0-litre V-8 engine.

Buckle up and visit your Buick dealer.

The Buick Regal Grand National is also a very civilized automobile, but intended for well, a different part of civilization. It comes with all the conveniences expected of a Buick. In fact, it comes with just about everything — except excess chrome. That includes a sequential-port fuel-injected 3.8-litre engine, with intercooled turbocharger. A firm suspension system. Front bucket seats with full operating console. Tach. Turbo boost gage. Fat tires. And blackout trim just about everywhere. Regal could turn your world around.
