

You and your Cadillac

If you could follow the average Cadillac car through the course of a whole year's activities, you would understand, we think, how much the car could add to your own satisfaction and happiness. For no other motor car leads so interesting and vital a life—or brings its owner so many happy and memorable moments. Whether it be a visit to some noteworthy happening of the day . . . or a journey to one of the season's leading social events . . . or simply a routine family outing—a Cadillac car is always an inspiring companion and a source of wondrous comfort and pleasure. And wherever journey's end might find its owner, he knows that his Cadillac introduces him with rare eloquence—and represents him as a man of substance and character. Certainly then, there can be no conjecture as to why Cadillac owners regard their motor cars with such deep and abiding affection. It is simply that a Cadillac brings a man a measure of contentment and satisfaction and pleasure that he can find in no other material possession.

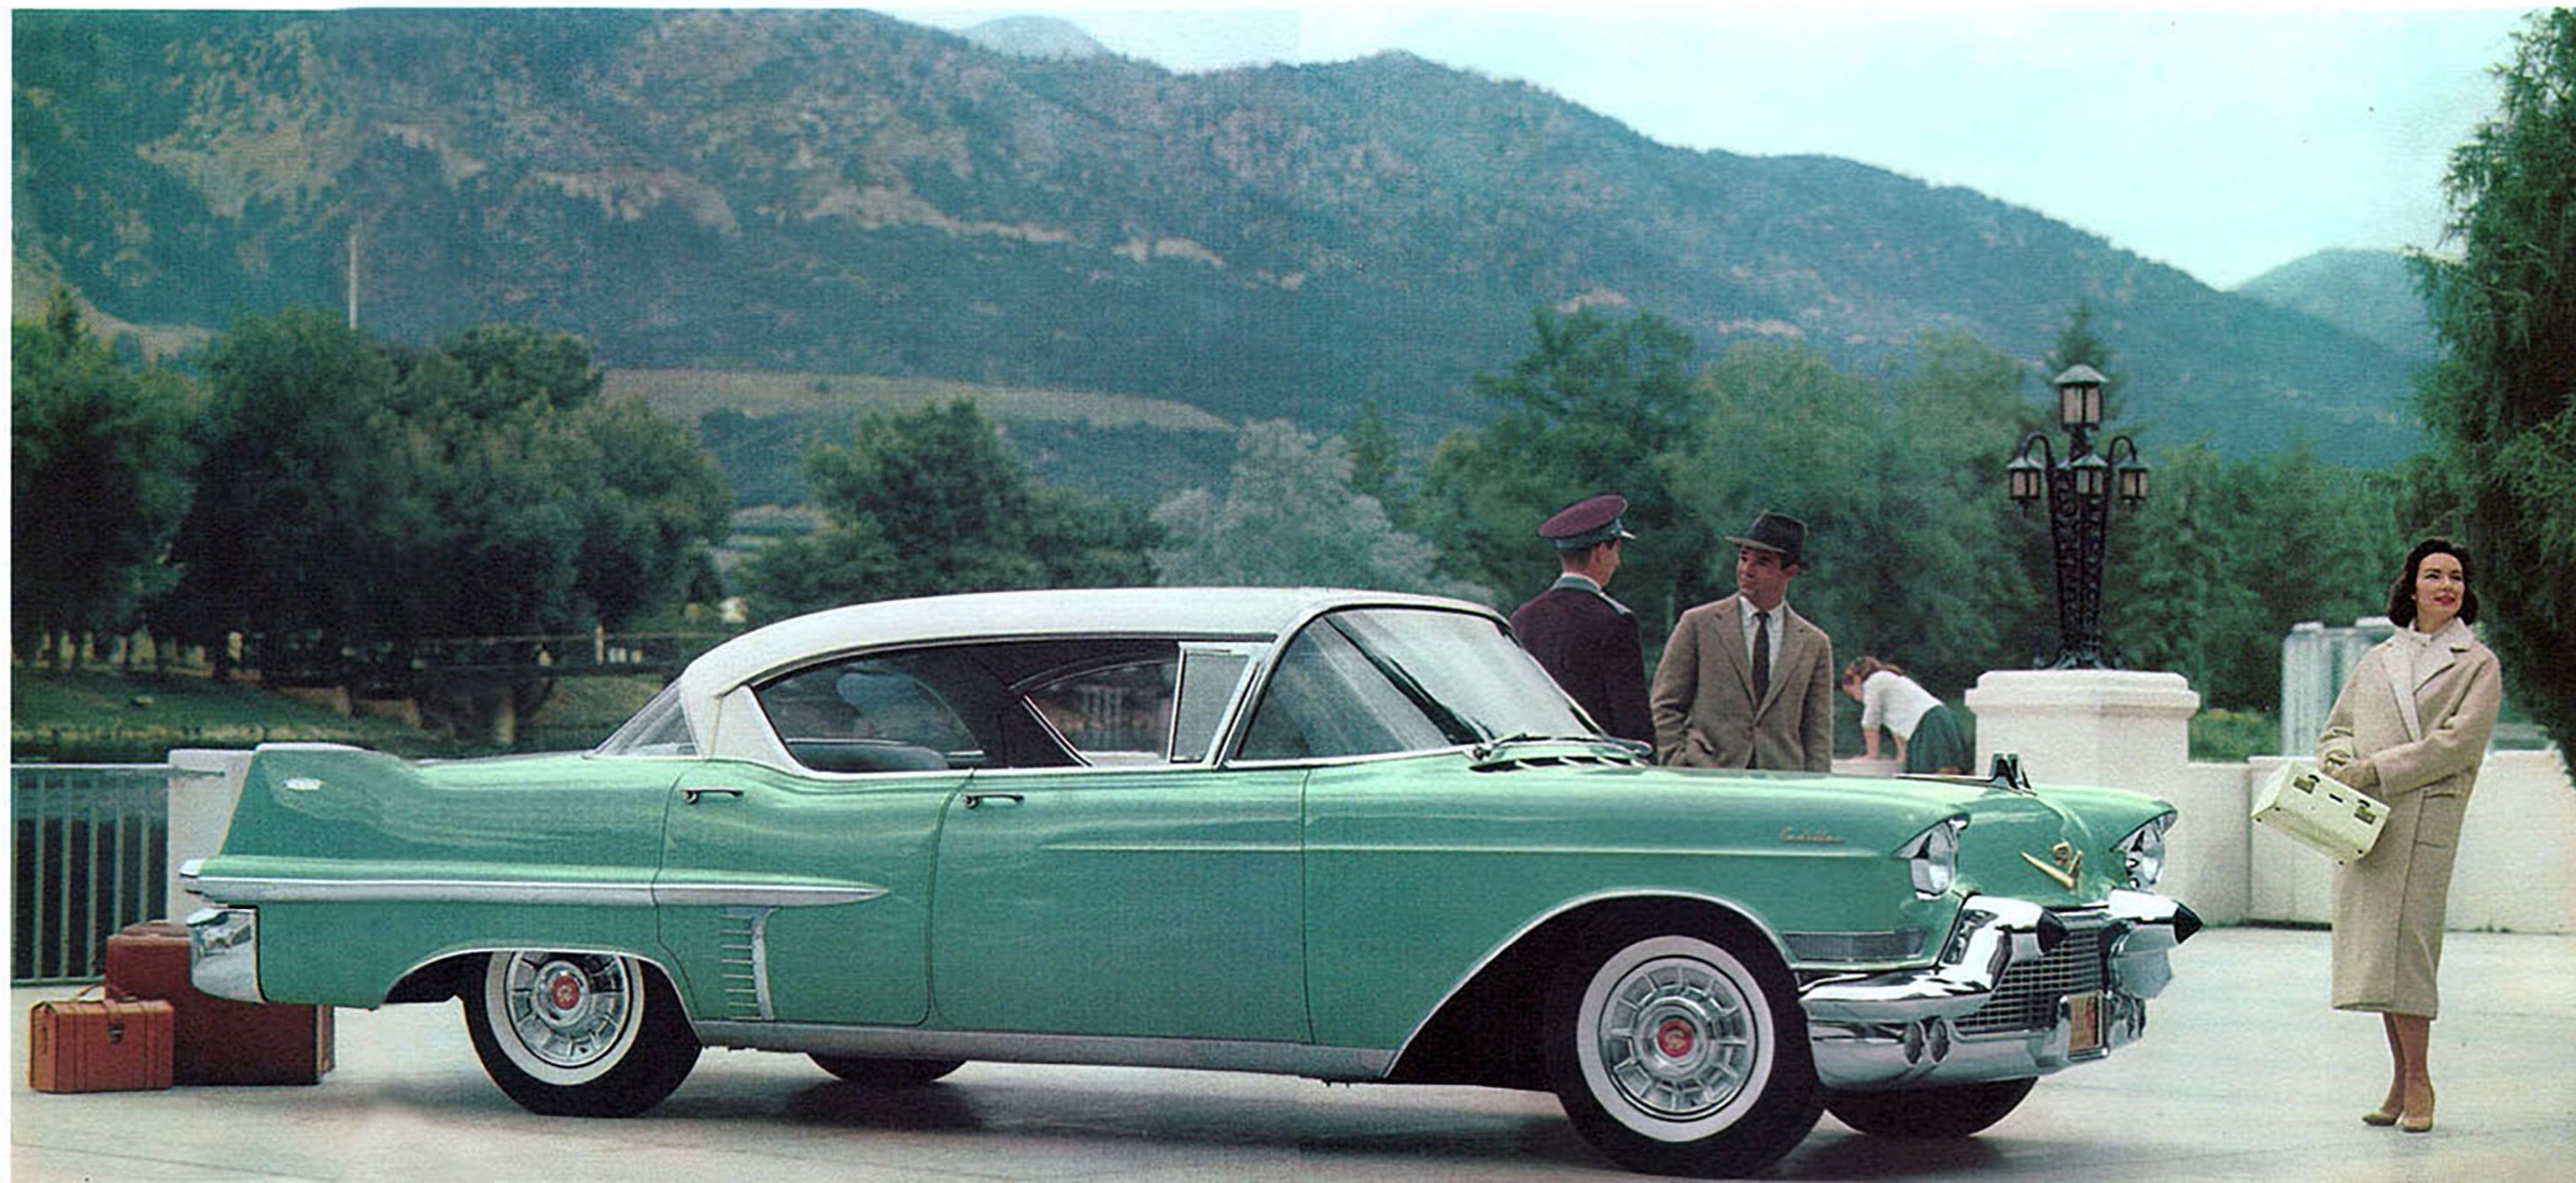

You will add so much to your personal happiness!

You will provide such wonderful comfort and safety for your family!

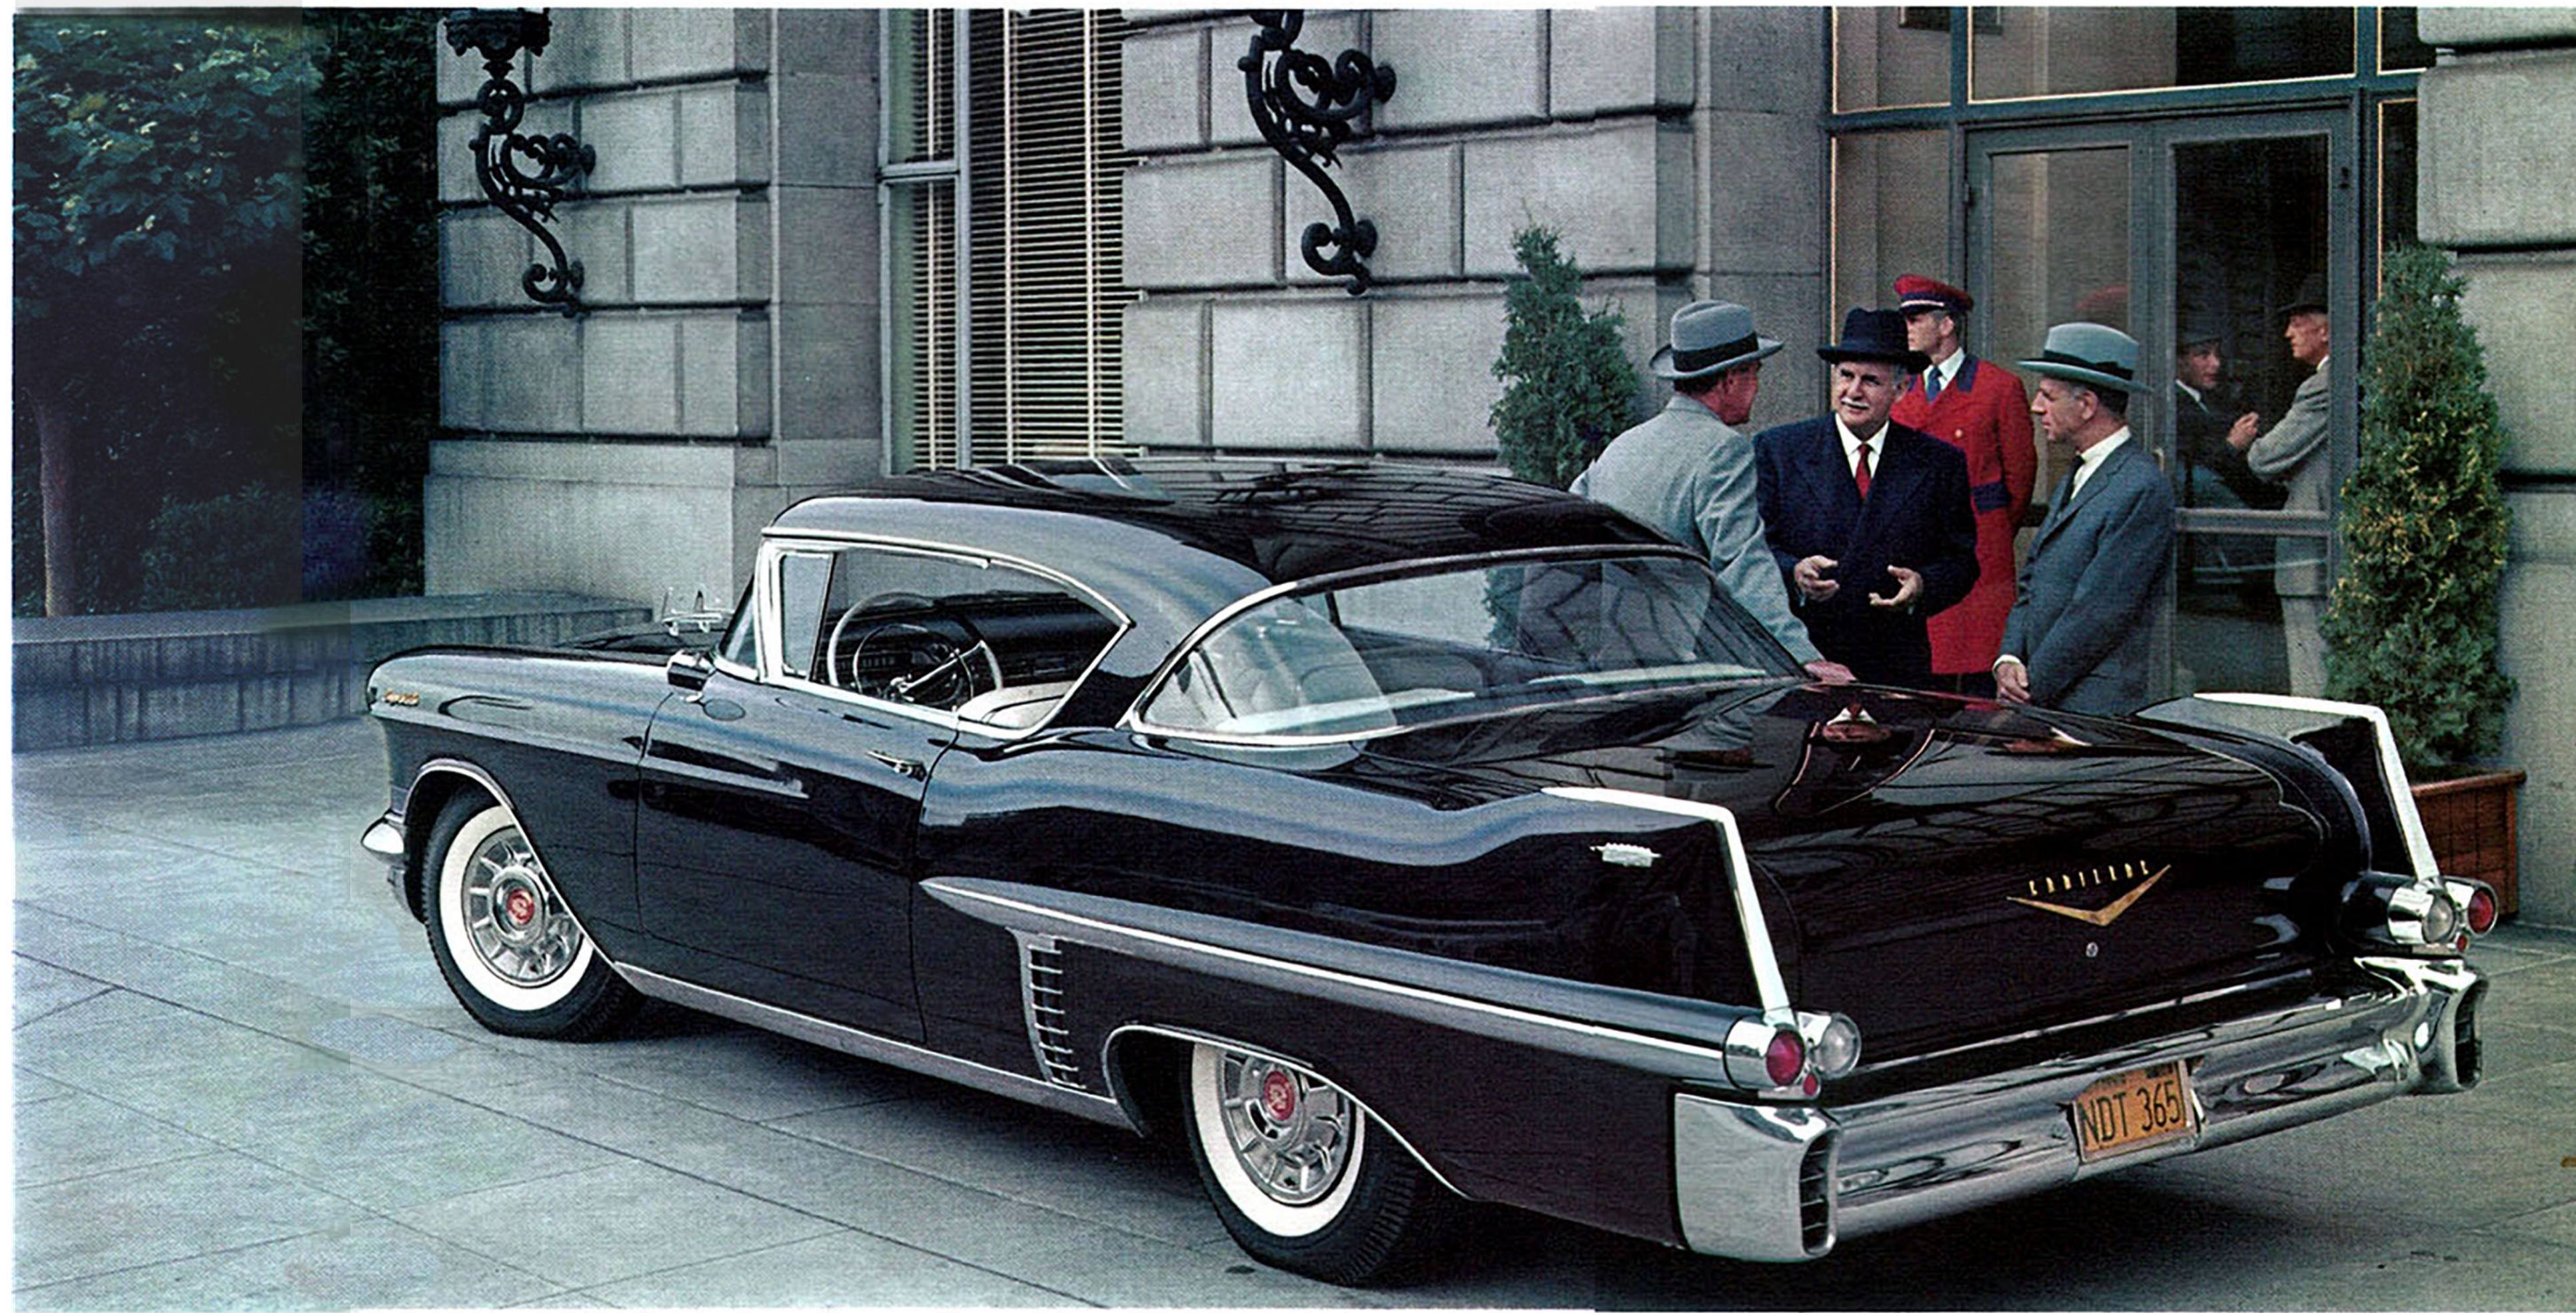

Take a new 1957 Cadillac—give it a home with a fine American family—and, in no time at all, the car will become one of its best-loved members. For a Cadillac does so many things to enhance the joy of family living. Its luxurious Fleetwood coachcrafting, for instance, provides truly extraordinary comfort and convenience through even the longest journey. Its marvelous safety and dependability assure perfect peace of mind through every mile. And as far as the head of the household is concerned—well, it's a pleasure just to take the wheel. The car is so eager and agile, so smooth and responsive that it almost challenges belief. Certainly, a new Cadillac would make a wonderful addition to your family's happiness—and serve as a revealing tribute to your thoughtfulness.

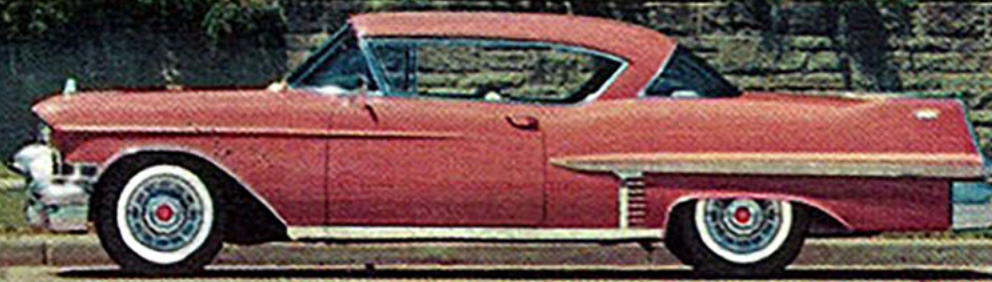

You will make motordom's soundest investment!

It is a generally recognized and accredited fact that when a motorist purchases a Cadillac he makes one of the soundest of all automotive investments. The reasons for this are readily apparent. There is Cadillac's modest purchase price, for instance—actually rivalling that of far less accepted cars. There is the Cadillac's marvelous economy of operation—and its extraordinary dependability and longevity. And, to be sure, there is Cadillac's phenomenal resale value—traditionally the finest in all motordom. Certainly, this extraordinary combination of virtues illuminates an important and significant truth—that Cadillac ownership is as wise as it is wonderful . . . and as practical as it is pride-inspiring.
